Ludwig Göhring in "his" Cave

Ludwig Göhring was arrested in 1933 while trying to pass on illegally printed leaflets to one of his Communist comrades. He had set up his printing press in a remote cave in the Franconian countryside, because the noise it made might have betrayed him in Nuremberg. He was taken to Dachau concentration camp, where he was severely beaten by the SS and locked up in chains in an underground cell without windows or heating for 14 months. Ludwig Göhring was imprisoned in Neuengamme from late July until early November 1944. Foto: unbekannt, 1980er-Jahre. (Privatbesitz)
